

Citizens Climate Collaborative: Shaping Our Emerging World

What are we facing in terms of impending climate disruptions and what can we do to preserve the Earth for future generations?

Come together with other concerned citizens to discuss current climate realities, to discover ways to respond that help to give birth to the world we want to create, and to empower ourselves to meet those realities with wisdom and resilience.

This workshop includes a brief overview of earth systems and the latest climate science, followed by conversations and actions to help us rise to the unprecedented challenges ahead.

"Winning slowly is the same as losing."
